

Term Life Plan

The Term Life Plan pays a lump-sum death benefit to your designated beneficiaries in the event of your death.

HOW IT WORKS

Your employer may provide coverage in the Term Life Plan; there is no cost to you.

- You do not have to provide a health statement (also known as evidence of insurability) to receive term life coverage.
- Coverage continues as long as your employer provides it.
- Term life coverage may not be converted to individual coverage at any time.

If you are enrolled in the Term Life Plan, you may apply for supplemental death benefits, if offered by your employer, for additional protection against the unexpected loss of income if you die. Supplemental death benefits are available for you, your spouse, and/or your children.

AMOUNT OF BENEFITS

Your employer selects the amount of term life coverage provided.

GET STARTED

If your employer provides term life coverage, you will be automatically enrolled. The only action you need to take is designate a beneficiary to receive death benefits. Review your beneficiaries each year so that your benefits will be paid as you intend.

You may apply for supplemental death benefits, if offered to you, during Annual Enrollment or within 60 days of a qualifying life event.
